RE: Ms Z Pali's Letter of Recommendation for Hong Kong Laureate Forum

To the Selection Committee

In my capacity as a lecturer in the Human Biology and Integrated Pathology department, who have worked with Ms Pali as a tutor and demonstrator of Human Physiology learning activities for our 1st and 2nd year medical students; I would like to forward my full support and recommendation for her application to participate in the above-mentioned forum.

Miss Zenande Pali is currently a doctoral student in the Pharmacy Department and Nanomedicine Platform at Nelson Mandela University. Having worked with her in the department, Ms Pali has shown so much dedication to her work and always willing to learn from everyone in the department that she got exposed to through the tutorship programme we offered her. She has constantly assisted students (using her learned academic and research skills) with every task assigned to her and we have since seen her contribution and efforts through the success of these learning activities where she was closely involved. I can boldly state that she is an outstanding young aspiring scientist with great potential to contribute to a wider scale of medical education and research. I have no doubts that Ms Pali will put her uttermost dedication and vibrant energy for the participation to the Hong Kong Laureate Forum.

I do believe that Ms Pali's participation in the forum will enhance her scientific research career and professional development. Furthermore, it will give Ms Pali the exposure of a lifetime and opportunity to socialize and start to build a network which may lead to collaborations at a later stage. I also believe that Miss Pali's exceptional research skills, scientific knowledge, and personal attributes make her an outstanding candidate for the Hong Kong Laureate Forum.

If you need more information in this regard, please feel free to contact, thank you.

Yours Sincerely,

Mr Philanathi Mabena
Lecturer
