Experience

Alberts Shed, Telford: Barback/Bartender: October 2023 – September 2024

In this role I was responsible for lots of barback duties, such as stocking the bar, handling finance and stocking up the bar. When I turned 18, I was trained as a bartender and was taught how to pour and mix many different drinks. This vastly improved my skills of communicating with the public, even in noisy, bustling settings.

Exotic Zoo, Telford: Volunteer: June 2022 – September 2022

This role involved feeding and handling a variety of exotic species, including snakes, birds and small primates. Majority of the job would involve handling different species and presenting them to the public, giving engaging talks to all ages about the anatomy, behaviour and importance of each species. This has allowed me to develop high levels of skill in animal husbandry, animal handling and giving engaging and exciting talks to the public.

British Military Martial Arts: Assistant Coach: October 2021 – December 2022

I was involved in planning, setting up and carrying out engaging kickboxing and martial arts sessions for children aged 4-13 across the span of 2 different classes on a weekly basis. I would have to demonstrate and critique techniques to the students in a disciplined fashion, whilst also keeping the lessons fun and exciting.

Other Skills

Reptile handling and husbandry course in the New Forest: A 1 week residential course in the new forest learning about the behaviour, handling and husbandry of many different exotic herptile species such as Giant African Bullfrogs, Argentine Tegus and Burmese Python. This taught me additional skills in animal handling, as well as learning more about reptiles and amphibians in general

Volunteer Market Stall at Wellington Market: Me and 3 others organised and ran a market stall selling Asian food, which all the profits of the market stall would go to charity. We organised stock, handled finance, marketed and advertised our business as well as engaging positively with the public, developing all of my skills within these areas
