Letter of Recommendation

To Whom It May Concern,

It is with great pleasure that I write this recommendation letter for Ms. Yasmine Eddoubaji, with whom I had the privilege of working closely during my role as a Postdoctoral Researcher at the Institute for Infectious Diseases (IFIK), University of Bern (Bern, Switzerland), from September 2023 to August 2024. During this time, Ms. Eddoubaji consistently demonstrated exceptional academic aptitude, dedication, and advanced research skills.

While working together, Ms. Eddoubaji focused on establishing a novel in vivo model to investigate pathogenic MDR-Ent bacteria in the intestinal tract. She made significant contributions at every stage of the project, from experimental design to data analysis and manuscript preparation. Her meticulous approach and commitment to excellence were reflected in her ability to produce consistent, high-quality results. Notably, her research led to publications in respected international journals, including, underscoring her ability to deliver impactful scientific work. Furthermore, she effectively communicated her results at several international conferences, presenting her findings with clarity and confidence, further demonstrating her strong scientific communication abilities.

In addition to her technical expertise, Ms. Eddoubaji is highly organized, proactive, and excels both as an independent researcher and as a collaborative team member. Her excellent communication skills allow her to clearly present complex ideas, making her an asset in both research and applied research settings.

I have no doubt that Ms. Eddoubaji will make a meaningful contribution to the opportunity she pursues.

Please do not hesitate to contact me if you require further information.

Sincerely yours,

Dr. Dania Al Ismail, MD, PhD
