

13 March 2025

The Organizing Committee

2nd Hong Kong Laureate Forum

Recommendation Letter for Lin Xu

Dear Organizing Committee Members:

This recommendation letter is being provided in support of the application of Dr Lin Xu to attend the 2nd Hong Kong Laureate Forum.

I have known Lin Xu for more than 10 years now in a number of capacities as a student, a research assistant, a research collaborator and as a youth volunteer in our initiatives. He has been attending many our seminars and symposiums as a university student. He then became my student in my global health course where he started to show his scientific interest and skills. He eventually became my research assistant for a number of researches until he became one of the young leaders of our global health program teaching and mentoring students from many countries on research and scientific skills.

Lin Xu is destined to be an excellent scientist. While working for my projects, I noticed that he can easily grasp ideas and he can easily apply theories to our work. He can go through the different steps of the research process easily without too many difficulties. He would ask the right and pertinent questions showing his inquisitive mind and his yearning for truth and knowledge which he applies in his scientific work. He is very conscientious, methodical and systematic in his approach to research. He is a diligent student and very productive with his outputs with more than 50 peer-reviewed papers and his H-Index has reached 21.

In terms of communication and language, Lin Xu has a good command of the English language, and he attained a score of 7.5 in his IELTS test. I have seen and heard him deliver lectures and seminars in my classes and workshops which are all conducted in English. He has good speaking skills as shown by his ability to deliver lessons in medicine and health in my teaching events and in conferences and seminars. He has presented in international conferences and seminars abroad particularly in UK, US, uae, France, Malaysia. He is also adept in writing in English as shown by his ability to write research papers and other forms of publications and materials. It will be easy for him to participate in these gatherings. He possesses a good personality.

His participation in this event will definitely inspire him to become a better excellent scientist he desires. Thus, I highly recommend him to this program as I know this will not only benefit him but also his university and his country. He is an epitome of the kind of scientists we need to develop for the future of humanity.

Should you need further information, please feel free to contact me through my email Don-Eliseo.Lucero-Prisno@lshtm.ac.uk.

Sincerely yours,

Don Eliseo Lucero-Prisno III BSc (Hons) MD PgD MPH MSc PhD FRSPH FHEA
Tutor in Global Health Policy, London School of Hygiene and Tropical Medicine